THE JELLY STUFF

JELLYHEADS is an anti-authoritarian social club who run and organise an alternative venue/cafe project. Membership is open to all people.

The day to day business of JELLYHEADS is done by a collective(s) that is made up of any members who are actively involved.

JELLYHEADS encourages the individual to participate and take responsability for the space, it's facilities, themselves and to create a positive atmosphere.

None of the collective members are paid and decisions are made through consensus. All proceeds from JELLYHEADS events are chanelled back into the project.

JELLYHEADS will always remain financially autonomous.

JELLYHEADS want to create an enviroment where people feel comfortable regardless of their appearance,sex,age,race or sexual preferances.It will be multi-media in terms of the events it puts on.We are open to groups and individuals to use the space who support the aims of this project.

Our commitment is towards co-operation and against competition and coersion.

Columbus not welcome

Indigenous American groups have begun demonstrations against the celebration of Christopher Columbus' 'discovery' of America. They have also laid plans for activities to counter the big bash – the celebration of the 500th anniversary – which will take place in October 1992.

The demonstrations have not been limited to the Indians of the US, but are taking place in both North and South America. Carrying signs denouncing "500 years of genocide", Mapuche natives held a march in downtown Santiago, Chile, and demanded that land taken from their ancestors be returned. In Lautara, a city in the far south of the country, eleven protestors were arrested for obstructing police during an occupation, and in Tanuco, a university was occupied by students of Arauco origin.

In Bolivia, where the day marking Columbus' arrival has become the object of annual protests, a day of mourning was declared and a number of demonstrations took place. Bolivia has the highest proportion of indigenous people (67%) in Latin America.

In Lima, Peru, a demonstration took place, and another was held in front of Columbus' statue in Mexico City, Mexico.

In Guatemala, 275 representatives of native groups from most countries in the Americas met to exchange information, co-ordinate activities and plan the "500 Years Campaign" protests. Risking a violent reception from the far-from-dormant death squads, Rigoberta Menchu, the author of a well-known autobiography and whose parents and brother were murdered by the military, returned from exile to attend the conference.

Some interesting information is also coming out of Nicaragua. It appears that the Sandinistas imprisoned native people's representatives, and forcefully relocated native people to "model villages" of the kind put into practice by the US in Vietnam during the war.

CARE FOR YOUR NEW TATTOO

Leave bandage on for at least 12 hours. Remove, and wash tattoo with warm soapy water, washing any dried blood off tattoo. Pat dry with a towel, do not rub. Wash several times a day until healed, usually about a week. Don't scratch or pick scab ever! Let it fall off naturally. Don't use any creams or lotions, except Savlon or aloe vera gel. No Vaseline! Don't get tattoo sunburnt, keep it out of sun until healed. Swimming isn't advisable, either. After tattoo is completely healed, an SPF 15 blockout cream will protect colour from fading, and is recommended. Apply whenever tattoo is exposed to strong sunlight.

WHAT WASN'T ON..../WAS the band-night last saturday!....basically ...really fuckin' sorry for that...apology especially goes out to the band that turned up with their gear to find the place closed! The reason why that event went down the drain was a lack of communication between the organizers. It takes a lot of work and committment to keep events happening and because the collective still has to run most of them people get very exhausted and start to forget things or do them in the last minute which sometimes just doesn't work out.....but everyone is trying hard to avoid such disasters! So..mhm..get involved.. get active...organize!

I T ' S N O T O N ! ! !

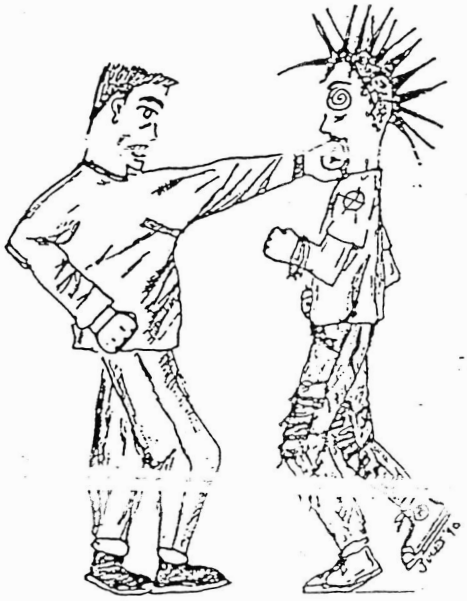
!!!Insurance-companies so far have refused to insure us for PUBLIC LIABILITY....SO....we want to let everyone know that we are not taking responsibility for any accidents that might happen to you in or around the warehouse!!!

A recent set back for us occured after we put on a gig on Mayday. One of the speakers from the PA we hired was ripped off from a van that was being used to transport gear. So that leaves us with a $500 debt to Graftons sound that we could well do without.We'll be paying it off over time, but it is a burden,especially at the moment when we would like to be putting money towards our own PA and other stuff for Jellyheads.Anyway we now have this debt and will continue on our way.

. Steal from the rich,that is the likes of Packer,Murdoch,Abeles and other extremely wealthy fatcats, not other people and community based groups who are struggling to survive...

Here we go again, an old flyer that is unfortunately still relevant. Smashing bottles, hassles and making a racket that keeps the neighbours down the street making complaints to us is something we neither need or want -

IS THIS WHAT YOU REALLY WANT?!



Nearly all of us have experienced or seen bouncer violence and we all know it SUCKS, right! But it's a sad fact that there are some people in our scene who almost justify the need for bouncers/security. Violence and vandalism are still part of going to shows. The question is how to deal with this other than retaliate with more violence.

Over the last year or more there have been several attempts to put on hassle-free gigs and several benefits have been organised to set up an alternative venue. Unfortunately few of these gigs have happened without hassles - broken windows/property damage and fights/intimidation have marred these attempts. Everytime something like this happens we lose a venue, I can think of at least 5 venues/halls that will no longer have punk/hardcore gigs because of smashed windows etc.

Isn't it time we started taking responsibility for our actions and have some more respect for each other and our venues (especially halls and community centres). Violence and vandalism must stop - It is moronic, regressive and has no part in our scene. IT IS NOT WELCOMED AND NEITHER ARE THOSE WHO WISH TO ACT IN SUCH A LAME WAY!!!

WISE UP OR FUCK OFF!!!!!!!!!!
